The third car was smashed up, seats and passengers being crushed together in one mass. Mr. Bronson, of New Britain, Conn., had his bowels torn open by splinters of the seats. Some slivers of mehogany were extracted from his intestines by the doctors to day. His entrails were literally cut into mneement, and, although he still lives, his recovery is impossible. He is a man of strong build and constitution. He crawled out of the ruins to the track, holding in his lowels with his hand.

Fortunately the third car jumped so high that it went through the second car above the heads of the passengers. Had it cut through e little lower, several more would have been killed.

From the nature of the accident and the complet destruction of the cars, it is miraculous that nut of 60 or 50 passengers so few were fatuly injured. There were several nurve escapes. One passenger, Mr. Olgsburg, of Jefferson, was in the second car, and the whole wood work, not a foot also he had.

The banks are not the sole cause of this state of things, but they have had their full share in bring-ing about that inflitted state of trade and land and railroad speculation which did came it. This, together with the fact that they have our monetary fortify thentselves. It is not reasonable to expect system under their exclusive control and that they alone have power of affording either relied or remedy, imposes upon their the duty of doing that sensibly apparent to every trader, merchant, manuthe Nashville brokers at from 60 to 80 cents on which, without lajuring them, will save our comfacturer, and farmer. The Nashville Patriot, in an ercial, manufacturing, and agricultural interests article instifying the suspension of the Tennessee banks, has thus portraved these evils: There is no difference of opinion among intelligent | The banks of the South and West that have conich inen, who witnessed former suspensions, that a bank aspension now would afford great immediate relief, prevent a great number of failures, and save immense sams in getting agricultural product to market at fair prices. That it will have the effect of restoring former fictitious values is neither to be expected nor desired. They turn t stand the resulting justment which such a crisis always produces. Those who cannot stand that readjustment, upon the basis of a sound and reasonable general trade, must break, and there is no salvation for them. But there is a large unmber of merchants and traders who can survive this process if they are temporarily relieved.

The banks of the South and West that have continued releading and interest and to save the cotton and grain and toolseed, and we see the cotton and grain and toolseed, and we see the cotton and grain and toolseed, and still in the hands of the country left odded with meaning the most possible and they are nearly in the reach interest save their own, are firing through the country, by thought and there is no salvation for them. But there is a large unmber of merchants and traders who can survive this process if they are temporarily relieved.

The banks of the South and West that have continued releading and have been mainly emploided, the true Field, has been relief, has been neglected, and we see the cotton and grain and toolsed with the means of turber and toolsed with the means of turber and the reach interest and there is no salvation for them. But there is a large unmber of merchants and traders who can survive this procass if they are temporarily relieved. The hanks ought not to permit such meu to break. Besides, prices have not yet nearly touched the lowest point they must reach if the present scarcity of money continues for sixty or ninety days longer. The loss to the agricultural interest from those still lower prices is what the banks can and ought to prevent ley suspension.

It also greatly prolongs the season, adding to it both in spring, and animar. In Api you have not to waitfour weeks for the ground to be dry enough to sow oats or spring wheat. The ground, when plow ed, is at a higher temperature, and, of course, the process of vegetation begins secure. In the Fall, frosts are prevented by the higher temperature of the earth. It is reality made of a field a slight hot-bed, and forces and prolongs vegetation. It is easy to be seen that a field a slight hot-bed, and forces and prolongs vegetation. THE LAST COACH.

WALKING TO THE STATION.

BY JOHN J. PLATT.

We wander down the woodland lane

Wind all around the river wood.

Wa found where olden roses ky.

Along the vale the sound is blown

No, 'tis the waters far and lone, The singing of the lonely dam.

Across our dreamland mirror cast!

And wake the twitight bridges still; No more the enrious village joys

No more, with you and me, the hope

Grow strong to see the horses' might

Round the green windings of the vale

Its windows are the dreamy fram-Lit by our paintings' loved and last

Gleam up.the roses of the Past!

These grew too much of light around

And we await for memories pale...
"They vanished with it," seems to grow

Features, that from the heart's low flames

Forever gone; the wheels no mora

We started later than we ought, Too late we came -the stage has passed!

Old names that give our lips their light mong the blackened moses dead, Unburied in nor hearts to-night!

And fill the heart of solitude.

That to the bighway greenly steals,

The restroining laws and other similar laws of our State display great ingenuity and show maccountable minuteness of detail in all the specifications of what may be required of banks, to prevent any promises or transactions that look to performance in any other medium than gold and silver, purable on demand. The wisdom of the system as a general rule, and in ordinary times, we do not doubt. The peculiar circumstances of the country call for a remedy for the disease, which in a healthy state of inflairs would be impolitic. We hope the nation will be saved from the spectacle of another lumkrupt act, with its demoralizing and disgraceful tendencies. If it can be saved from it by removing restrictions and penallies from the hanks, or by authorizing a new form of currency for a limited period with the understanding that as soon as possible and on a day to be named there shall be a return to the constitutional currency, a great advantage will have been gained to those who stand ready to set the wheels of business in motion, and
